Funeral of Ex-President Fillmore.

BUFFALO, March 12.—The people of Buffalo to-day exhibited in a marked manner their veneration for the deceased ex-President Millard Fillmore. At 1 o'clock the family and a few friends of the deceased gathered at his late residence, where services were conducted by Rev. R. Hotchkiss and Rev. Jno. C. Lord. Eight officers with the escort of a whole company of the Buffalo City Guard bore the remains to St. Paul's Cathedral.

Reception of the Intelligence of Senator Sumner's Death in Massachusetts—Message from Governor Washburn.

BOSTON, March 12.—Neither branch of the Massachusetts Legislature transacted any business to-day. Upon the assembling of the Senate a message was received from the Governor announcing the death of Sumner and paying an eloquent tribute to his memory, concluding with a congratulation that the resolution rescinding the vote of censure reached him as it did.

On motion of Banks the message was referred to a joint committee of both Houses with instructions to report a plan for properly honoring the memory of the deceased Senator.

Charles Sumner's Successor.

BOSTON, March 12.—Among the names mentioned as the successor to Sumner, are H. L. Dawes, ex-Gov. Bullock, Clifford, Gov. Washburn, F. B. [illegible], Gen. Banks and Gen. Butler. The election will probably occur on the 28th inst.

The New Hampshire Election.

CONCORD, N. H., March 12.—Weston fails of election by from 300 to 500 votes. Four Republican and five Democratic Senators are elected with no choice in four districts. From returns already in the House stands: Democratic 172, Republican 167. Eight towns to hear from, which at last election chose Democrats and have probably done so this year.

Miscellaneous News.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The jury in the case of Rag, charged with the murder of O'Neill, rendered a verdict of murder in the second degree. Sentence was deferred.

A partial examination of Brooklyn accounts shows that the amount of the alleged defalcation will reach $100,000.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Funeral Honors to the Dead Statesman.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The pall bearers at Sumner's funeral to-morrow, will be Senators Anthony, [illegible] Sargent, McCreery, Oglesby and Stockton. Those especially invited to attend the funeral are the President and members of the Cabinet, the Justices of the Supreme Court, the diplomatic corps, [illegible] General of the Army and Admiral of the Navy. The invitations to the two last named include invitations to army and navy officers and officers of the marine corps, respectively.

Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Senate Committee on Commerce have agreed to report favorably on the House bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to fix the number of fur seals that may be killed annually on the islands of St. Paul and St. George, respectively, provided that the total number of [illegible] 000 now allowed by law to be killed annually shall not be exceeded.

The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs have reported adversely and the Senate has postponed the [illegible] indefinitely. The bill introduced by Oglesby and endorsed by the Interior Department in accordance with the report of Special Commissioner [illegible] proposing to create an immense reservation in the northeastern part of Washington Territory for the Coeur d'Alenes and eight other tribes of Indians.

The Pope Counsels the Austrian Bishops to Resist the Powers that be.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Pope has written a letter to the Austrian Bishops, urging them to resist the proposed ecclesiastical laws.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—The Woman's Temperance Union have decided to hold a mass meeting at Platt's Hall. At a meeting last night they passed a resolution asking the Legislature to pass a bill providing that all money received in payment of licenses for the sale of liquors be distributed to the charitable institutions of the city.

Patrick McPeake, who was shot by his son-in-law, J. S. Fernald, last night, is more dangerously wounded than was at first supposed.

The weather to-day is clear and pleasant.

The grocers of this city regard with much favor the petition of the women to the Board of Supervisors, respecting their liquor licenses. They claim that any discrimination against them in favor of saloons will be unconstitutional, and will probably fight any such measures as are contemplated.

A meeting of condolence upon the death of Charles Sumner will be held by the colored citizens of this place next Friday evening.

Greenbacks unchanged.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—The charge against young Gilkey of attempt to commit a rape on a little girl, was dismissed in the Police Court [illegible] the proof not being sufficient. The prisoner was the son of Gilkey, who was shot in Watsonville a few days since.

Thos. Alstrap and Charles Morton got into a fight to-day on East street. Alstrap shot at Morton, but missed his aim, when the latter took the pistol from him and gave him a terrible beating with the weapon. Alstrap was arrested.

The Sheriff of San Luis Obispo county arrived in the city to-night with Antonio Rodriguez, sentenced to San Quentin for a term of one year for grand larceny.

Dispatches from Palisades and Battle Mountain state that the Central Pacific Railroad track near the latter place is impassable for a distance of about ten miles. The track has sunk down, and the culverts are washed away by the floods of water and severe storms of rain, hail and snow in the Sierras. No trains can come through until the track is repaired.

NEVADA.

EUREKA, March 13.—The stage leaving here last evening for Hamilton was obliged to return owing to the furious snow storm. The driver managed to go as far as Pinto mountain, but the storm, unrestrained and sweeping over the summit in unbroken fury, so affrighted the horses that it was deemed advisable to take the back track, almost impenetrable darkness and driving snow rendering it impossible to proceed over the summit. The stage from Hamilton due here at 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon, has not yet arrived. The stage from Palisade, due yesterday morning, did not arrive until 6 o'clock last evening. The roads are in a very bad condition.

The Coroner's jury on the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Foster, who died here very suddenly on Wednesday, rendered a verdict that, though dying from natural causes, they have reason to believe her death was hastened by violence. Wm. Herron, a man who had been living with deceased, was arrested pending the examination, but after the verdict was discharged, the evidence against him not being sufficient to present the case before the grand jury.

Weather now clear.

RENO, March 13.—The passenger train bound east which should have passed here at 1.15 this morning, left at 6.30 this evening. The westward bound train passed Winnemucca two hours late. Weather in the morning was snowing and cold. Southwest wind prevails. Weather east calm, cold and snowing at intervals. Train all moving, but all behind time, and making but very slow progress.

Reports from Kelton say the weather is threatening. Another storm expected before morning.

A bold attempt was made to-day here to set fire to the town. Three fires were started along a high board fence during a stiff breeze. They were discovered in time, however, to prevent what might have been a destructive conflagration. Great indignation is expressed, and a strict watch is kept on several suspicious characters.

ELKO, March 13.—The snow storm of last night blockaded the road between here and Toano. Up to this time no trains have been able to get through. It is snowing and blowing again, with no indications of change.

NOTES ON THE REPORT.

Figures marked * denote in the first table, an estimate made by the Superintendent from such data as could be obtained or from surmise. The same mark in the school table indicates either a correction from the books of the office or an extension into coin and currency of a gross amount. The distribution of currencies is an annoyance which is prevented this year by conversion to coin at the Treasurer's office. [illegible] currency was distributed [illegible] in most cases the Clerks included this [illegible].

(a) A number taught at home.

(b) A number attending public schools of Portland.

(c) The balance of the report of each parts district more strictly belongs to the other county and is therefore omitted.

(d) Includes value of land.

(e) No. 21 reports from unspecified sources $[illegible]; No. 27 reports $170.

(f) No. 11 organized Jan. 1st, too late to hold school, but receives aid under Sec. 11 of the School Law.

NO. AND GRADE OF SCHOOLS.

In every district there is one ungraded school with the following exceptions: No. 5, two grades; No. 21, [illegible] schools, two grades; No. 1, Portland, [illegible] grammar schools, 3 intermediate, 3 primary—six grades; 1 high school; 1 evening school; 1 ungraded school.

The following statistics are obtained from a comparison of different parts of the table:

Enrolled in public schools, [illegible] per cent; private schools, [illegible] per cent; no schools, 3 per cent.

Relation of average attendance to enrollment, [illegible] per cent.

Average age of school children, 10[illegible].

Average salary (not including No. 1), males, $[illegible]; female, $[illegible].

Salaries in No. 1 are as follows: [illegible] per month for six months.

Cost of instruction in whole County [illegible].

Cost per enrolled scholar (not including [illegible]) $[illegible].

Cost in Portland per scholar (4 quarters) $[illegible].

Cost in County, outside of Portland, per scholar (2 quarters) $8.7[illegible].

Total expenditure for educational purposes in County $48,[illegible].

Total expenditure in Portland $3[illegible].

There exists uncertainty also as to the principles which are to govern clerks and teachers in making their statements of enrollment, average attendance, etc. It is hoped that the State Superintendent will give rules for these purposes at an early day.

NOTES UPON INDIVIDUAL DISTRICTS.

[illegible] This school is well maintained. [illegible]

No. 4 (June [illegible], October 16, Nov. [illegible]).—[illegible] A good school has been maintained, and with excellent discipline. It is to be hoped that the second story of the house will be completed this season.

No. [illegible] (April [illegible], Oct. [illegible], Feb. [illegible]).—This District has made a marked improvement in the shape of the school [illegible] at a cost of $1[illegible]. The school is also divided into two grades with excellent teachers. Only proper furniture is needed to make [illegible] people take [illegible] pride in their work [illegible].

No. [illegible] (June 1[illegible], Oct. 1[illegible]).—This school [illegible] good teachers have produced the [illegible].

No. [illegible] (April [illegible]).—[illegible] school under a well [illegible] upon the main road and [illegible] building in a more comfortable [illegible] Some change in these respects is strongly urged upon the April meeting.

No. 8 (April [illegible], Nov. [illegible]).—This very sparsely settled District had a satisfactory three months school under an experienced teacher and should receive credit for all efforts to sustain itself.

No. [illegible] (July [illegible]).—A commendable effort on the part of a few citizens to reorganize this school has succeeded in bringing the District again into active existence. A small subscription school was maintained for three months.

No. 10 (June [illegible], Oct. 1[illegible], Nov. [illegible]).—A larger number of children than ever before have been enrolled and the instruction has been good. The need of a new school house is felt—want of money has prevented this hitherto. The coming year will give an increase of means from the county fund and I earnestly advise the early meeting in April to authorize the Directors to set up [illegible] money for the erection of a suitable building. If in addition a small tax were levied a school house could be put up without burden to any one.

No. [illegible] (July 28, Oct. 7, Nov. [illegible]).—A small but excellently conducted school.

No. 13 (Sept. 11).—Reorganized in July of last year and a small subscription school was held. Some readjustment of lines will be needed to accommodate all the children.

No. 14 (April 1, Oct. 7, Jan. 10).—This school has been maintained the greater part of the year and is now in the hands of an experienced teacher. A feature of interest is the spelling school, which draws the neighborhood together in the evening once a week and at which various literary exercises are introduced—an excellent means of culture and entertainment which might well be imitated by other districts.

No. 15 (Aug. 28, Nov. [illegible]).—A well managed District which will soon need to enlarge its school house.

No. 16 (June 17, Oct. 10).—The occasion of a law suit developed the fact of errors, etc., in the management of District records which necessitated a reorganization. I would here suggest to all Districts the importance of carefully kept records and of compliance with the law in the calling of meetings, elections and transaction of business. Great trouble is thus prevented when the affairs of the District become subject to hostile criticism. A good school of six months duration was held.

No. [illegible] (Oct. 7, Nov. 17, Feb. [illegible]).—Has held a successful term and is now under the care of an experienced teacher. There is too frequent change of instructors. It is better for a school to continue six months under care of a moderately good instructor than to change two or three times with better teachers.

18 (Oct. 13, Nov. 17, Jan. [illegible]).—This District continues to stand well and is one of our best schools. The full success which the present teacher (a young lady) meets with indicates that not sex or age but character and faculty are the prime considerations.

1[illegible] (Nov. 18).—After various tribulations and the loss of school house by fire this District has undertaken to erect another building on the old site and will, it is hoped, hold a six months school. [illegible] There is certainly a great temptation there to stand up each for his own rights and stand [illegible] on those of every one else. A good natured spirit and willingness to compromise even with unreasonable people for the sake of peace and the children will go a great way towards settling most vexed questions. The public and especially my successor in office will rejoice that one [illegible] has been effectually laid, viz: the [illegible] sections on the northern boundary of this District. Sections 28 [illegible] and [illegible], which after hanging like Mahomet's coffin in mid air for several years are now legally joined to Columbia County No. [illegible].

No. 20 (June 1[illegible], October 16).—A very successful [illegible] policy of engaging the best teachers [illegible] the cheapest is the only safe one.

No. 1 [illegible] visits: April 3, June 2, September [illegible], November [illegible], December 1[illegible]; South School, June 1, September [illegible], November [illegible].—In the Grammar Department an excellent school has [illegible] The Primary school is one of the largest and most important in the [illegible] The Clerk's report shows that [illegible] per cent [illegible] of those of school age are not attending any school at present. This fact surely suggests that a more liberal support or more interest in the object of education is needed.

No. 2[illegible] (May 19).—Held one quarter. The district [illegible] an efficient teacher for six months and include a larger number of children in its enrollment.

[illegible] (July 8, Oct. 11, Nov. 17).—St. Johns has again become the seat of business. The district deserves great credit for keeping a school when everything was depressed and maintaining school the greater part of the year.

May 14.—This office continues to favor the [illegible] which will be received [illegible] months of school [illegible]

[illegible]

The following public districts have been visited: [illegible]

[illegible]

In nearly every district of our county there is a commendable [illegible] furnished school houses. The [illegible] other to kindle [illegible] worse in perverting the soul of human lives.

Increased attention [illegible] be paid to [illegible]. A scholar who has learned to express himself and write a good letter has accomplished half the purpose of a common school education. The following teachers have been employed in districts out of Portland: L. Bennett, [illegible] J. P. McCall, [illegible] W. T. Witham, [illegible] J. M. Keyes 7; Miss Staples 9; Miss Pearce 10; Miss J. Powell 10; W. R. Strull 12; Miss Slaven [illegible]; J. Harrison 14; Miss Hattie King 14; [illegible] J. J. Mulkey [illegible]; Miss Humphrey, [illegible] J. Powell, [illegible] Buff, [illegible] Kelly.

The remainder of the report will have reference to the school system of Portland. Ninety visits have been made, besides a number of informal calls. This year has been one of marked improvement in all departments and has introduced changes of method which are destined to exercise an important influence in the future.

[illegible]

In both reports last year I called the attention of the public and the Directors to the great need of close supervision with the purpose of unifying and stimulating the whole system. A work was then needed which the County Superintendent could not be expected to do as the office is now constituted [illegible] authority. By a series of resolutions the Board have delegated Mr. King, who last year was principal in the north building, to oversee the work first of the lower schools and subsequently of the grammar department, during half of each school day, the balance of his time to be spent as assistant in the High School. This measure was not intended to reflect upon the work of any teacher. It was dictated by that common sense which sees the need of a head to every organization consisting of diverse and complex parts. Our schools like so many separate units or feudal baronies were governed by as many systems and precedents as there were teachers. The grades were indeed supposed to be defined but were in a decidedly nebulous state. It was not nor could it be expected of the Directors to spend their whole time in the details of school methods, discipline and examinations. It remained therefore to follow as far as practicable the example of other cities throughout the country where Superintendents [illegible]. I heartily endorse the measures of the directors in this respect and commend the policy [illegible] to the sympathy of our citizens. The experiment so far is not without satisfactory results [illegible] must be regarded as an earnest of complete success as time goes on. With the cooperation of teachers and the public in this matter we may trust that the graded schools of Portland will soon [illegible] that which has been appropriated in this direction.

[illegible] EXAMINATIONS.

The rules and regulations made last September provided for half-yearly examinations for promotion from one grade to another. In this arrangement the directors and teachers have only followed the uniform example of every thoroughly graded school system in the country. Especial emphasis was placed upon the examination for the High School. The work of examinations we regard as one of the most useful exercises [illegible] the scholars and their teachers. Several changes as to method and detail have suggested themselves and will be acted upon at the next semi-annual examination. The lower classes [illegible] interference with the usual work—secured by other judicious modifications. The substantial result has been that all the scholars are stimulated to do better work. They have learned that they cannot [illegible] by force of gravitation into an advance grade. The benefit arising from such an impression cannot be overestimated. The requirements at these examinations are simple and within the reach of all who are reasonably faithful to their [illegible].

I would at this point respectfully deprecate any hasty criticism on the part of the public press or casual observers of measures which in the best of faith [illegible] To intelligent criticism from non-anonymous sources [illegible]

PORTLAND, March [illegible] 1874.

OREGON.

A protracted meeting of the M. E. Church South has just closed at Brownsville.

Yamhill county has never had a candidate on the Democratic State or district ticket.

From the Mercury we learn that the hoodlum element is well represented on all public occasions at Salem.

Several youngsters were arrested at Oregon City a few days ago for disturbing a writing school. Two of them were fined.

The Democratic Convention for Linn, to nominate a County ticket, is called for the 24th of April—primaries on the 18th.

The Good Templar Lodge of Albany is increasing its membership rapidly; 30 new members were initiated last Tuesday evening.

Fred Hill, of Albany, had both hands severely burned last Saturday while attempting to extinguish the flames arising from a lot of burning paper.

The Albany Register says: A much larger breadth of grain will be sown in Linn this season and with an average crop we will have a tremendous surplus to sell.

Thirteen new Lodges of Good Templars have been organized in this State during the present Grand Lodge year. The order now claims to have over [illegible] members in Oregon.

The following named gentlemen were elected delegates to attend the State Convention by the Democratic County Convention of Polk county: Ben Hayden, I. I. Dempsey, [illegible] C. Davidson, D. J. Holmes, F. McDaniel and J. S. Townsend.

The Democratic platform in Yamhill county commences thus: "The Democracy in Yamhill county, in Convention assembled, do declare that the creature is not greater than the creator." Now will Independents or Republicans join issue on that question?

The Democrats of Polk nominated the following county ticket: Representatives, J. F. M. Butler, I. I. Dempsey; [illegible] Staats; County Judge, [illegible] Butler; Clerk, —— Sayers; Sheriff, I. M. Hall; Treasurer, Thomas Lovelady; Assessor, H. N. V. Holmes; Commissioners, Squire [illegible] and James Morrison.

The Democratic delegates from Lane county to the State Convention are L. Ackerman, A. J. Crusan, R. B. Cochran, Alex Sparr, George Rinehart, Jeff. C. Yates, C. W. Fitch, Thomas Milliorn and Richard Hayes. This delegation is said to be for Whiteaker for Governor, and J. M. Thompson for Judge of the Second District.

At the meeting of the Central Grange at Albany on Tuesday the 10th inst., Messrs. L. C. Burkhart, S. D. Haley and Wm. M. Powers were appointed a committee to ascertain the feasibility and probable cost of improving the Willamette river so as to make it navigable to Albany all the year round, with instructions to report at the meeting in May.

The Odd Fellows of Albany propose celebrating the fifty fifth anniversary of Odd Fellowship in the United States, which occurs on the 26th of April next, in a manner and style commensurate with the occasion. If the weather prove fair, the celebration will transpire in a beautiful grove near the city—otherwise, a suitable hall will be obtained in the city. The grand feature of the occasion will be the ball and sociable, under the control and management of the Daughters of Rebekah of Albany Lodge No. 4.

During the past week the following approved lists of Indemnity School Land selections have been received at the Executive office, Salem, from the Commissioner of the General Land Office: List No. 2, Roseburg District, embracing 320 acres, and list No. 1, La Grande District, embracing 1,472.94 acres. These lists complete the title of the State to all the Indemnity School Lands to which this State is entitled up to the present time, except in a few instances where the selections embracing a small number of acres are suspended on account of conflict with old abandoned preemption and homestead filings, which in a short time will be cleared away.

Lafayette Wilson, 16 years old, son of Bush Wilson, Clerk of Benton county, met with a serious accident on Saturday the 8th. He had gone across the river gunning. He had just fired off his shotgun and was in the act of reloading. As the charge in his flask did not hold enough once full for a load, he had poured a quantity of powder into his right hand; he then proceeded to pour the powder from the flask into the gun barrel, when the powder from the heat of the barrel or some cause exploded, burning young Wilson from his neck to the crown of his head, and exploding the powder held in his hand. His face was somewhat blistered, his eyebrows, eyewinkers and his hair scorched, but not as bad as at first reported or as feared. He will be all right in a few days.

THE TERRITORIES.

Double houses are better known in Salt Lake as houses with polygamous attachments.

J. Kuhn, Esq., of Port Townsend, has been admitted to practice in all the courts of Washington Territory.

Petty thieves are annoying the Olympians greatly of late. The rascals have got away with many small articles.

Wm. R. Chapman left Humboldt Co., Cal., ten years ago for Idaho and his friends have not heard from him since. They reside at Swamps [illegible].

A plan for a fine building has been submitted to the Olympia Academy Union. The Union may adopt it and construct the edifice the coming summer.

The total valuation of property in Colorado has increased from $[illegible] in 1870 to $[illegible] in 1873, and the population during that time from [illegible] to 101,[illegible].

As Mr. Bunn was going to Olympia from Tumwater the other day one of the horses attached to his buggy died very suddenly, leaving him on the road without a full team.

Justice Webster charged Thomas H[illegible] for stealing blankets from the house of John Welch, in Seattle, the sum of $50. He not having the cash the Justice concluded to take it in work.

The ship Dakota [illegible] arrived at Tacoma on the 10th inst. On her recent trip from Nanaimo to San Francisco while loaded with coal, she was caught in a heavy storm and suffered terribly. She was docked and repaired, and renewed to the extent of $23,000.

Between Tucson and Camp Bowie, Arizona, a distance of 120 miles, there are 120 graves, all filled by white men murdered by Indians. While out of 400 persons buried at Camp Bowie, only 18 died by natural causes—all the others being victims of savage butchery.

The Salt Lake Herald now estimates that Utah contains 140,000 inhabitants, whom he divides thus: Mormons, 125,000; Gentiles, 14,500; Ringites, 500. The Tribune adds: "If we count a few thousand unembodied and disembodied spirits, and throw in a liberal [illegible] of horses, mules, [illegible], the time-honored Mormon custom, we have it about the Herald's returns about correct. But of the [illegible] we think 130,000 would fully cover Utah's population, which we divide thus: Mormons who wear the collar and like it, [illegible]; Mormons who are trying to tear off the collar, [illegible]; Mormons who have thrown off the collar, [illegible]; good square apostate Mormons, [illegible]; good square Gentiles, 11,000; Jack Gentiles, 500; Jack Mormons, [illegible]; total population, 130,000."

TO THE FRIENDS OF TEMPERANCE.

At the late session of the Oregon State Temperance Alliance the following was adopted:

WHEREAS, There is no vital principle or issue dividing the existing political parties, and recognizing the temperance reform as being the great living issue of the age and of vital importance to the peace, security and happiness of the human family and the purity and integrity of the nation, and believing that, judging from past experience, there is no hope that any of the existing political parties will ever do anything with any honest intention to assist in removing the evil of intemperance and the liquor traffic; we are of the opinion that the time for independent action on our part has come; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Alliance appoint a committee whose duty it shall be to issue a call to all friends of the temperance reform to meet at such time and place as may be designated by this Alliance, to take steps and adopt such measures as will be practicable in inaugurating a separate and distinct independent political action in the coming State election by the temperance people of Oregon.

In accordance with the above, the friends of Temperance Reform are requested to meet in the several counties of the State, and elect delegates to attend a Convention to be held in the city of Portland, at Good Templars' Hall, corner of Third and Alder streets, on Tuesday, March 31, 1874, at 10 o'clock A. M., to take such action as may be necessary to carry out the spirit of this resolution and secure temperance legislation by the next Legislative Assembly of the State.

SATURDAY MORNING MARCH 14, 1874.

CONCERNING CERTAIN POLITICAL ATTITUDES

There seems to be a slight difference of opinion just now between the Portland Bulletin and those interior papers which have hitherto been reckoned as its most faithful allies. The movement for a People's Ticket to be submitted to the voters of Oregon at the June election has already developed formidable strength in the most populous counties of this valley and Eastern Oregon is stirred against parties. Up to last week the party organs said the political situation was [illegible]. But since two or three county conventions have met the Democratic organs have begun to hint about burnishing up their cuts of jubilant roosters. And the Bulletin philosopher declares that the People's movement is a dead thing, in which opinion the Statesman concurs, with the addition "it's a dead thing—that the People's ticket will be elected." The Democratic Conventions which have met have been scenes of wrangling and contention. Darkness broods over the face of the Democratic deep. But these internal dissensions, we are told, are evidences of "vitality." So when mortal man is in the throes of final dissolution in the last brief moments when exhausted nature copes with death, the idiot might exclaim "Behold! This is vitality!" So it is vitality—in its last struggle.

But, as we have said, there are several papers in the interior, hitherto reckoned among the staunchest supporters of the Custom House Ring, which begin to show signs of uneasiness at the swelling cry for emancipation from party. The Bulletin moralizes over the corpse of the Independent movement, but the Jacksonville Sentinel is disposed to look with growing favor on the popular demand, while the Albany Register would have the dear people to understand that "whenever they feel that they can best secure good government by going outside of existing parties, it will not say them nay, but will rather bid them God speed." There is here no room for equivocation or misconstruction. The Register is plainly in sympathy with the Independent cause. As to the Corvallis Gazette (another of the Ring papers), there is a grave doubt which can be dispelled perhaps, only by a revelation as to the direction in which the newly-born political cat will jump, and the exact length of the leap. The Cornelius Progressionist is mournfully contemplating the evolutions of the "straight" felines and has about come to the conclusion that they will imprudently emulate the example of the Kilkenny animals—consume each other. The State Journal was to be relied on to support anything the Custom House Ring might put up, as long as a surveying contract was in sight. The removal of Mr Odell has thrust a cruel conundrum on the Journal: "Where is the next one to come from?" and it stands in ghastly uncertainty between the healthy corpse of the People's movement and the seductive voucher.

The Benton Democrat comfortably perched on one of the riders of the fence, owlishly winks at the Board of Equalization and occupies its spare time in looking for a soft spot on either side. The Yamhill Reporter, the Lafayette Courier, the Eugene Hawkeye, the Forest Grove Independent, and the Dalles Mountaineer are to be found with the people. All the others have been "seen."

Meanwhile, the People's movement is growing to the full stature and dignity of a well-ordered organization. The Statesman of Thursday publishes a call for County and State Conventions, in accordance with the Douglas county recommendation, to which the names of over two hundred voters of Marion county are appended. Among them are to be found some of the oldest and best citizens of the county. Many have been known, heretofore, as strong partisans. We are advised that the call has been circulated in no more than three or four precincts, and there are eighteen precincts in the county, if we do not err. It occurs to us that the Bulletin has been kicking the wrong corpse.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE ELECTION

The figures given by our dispatches of the 11th indicate that this is not an "off year" in New Hampshire politics. The returns from 152 towns show an aggregate vote of 56,093. There remained 82 towns from which no word had been received. In 1871, James A. Weston (present Democratic candidate) had a majority of 180; in 1872, Straw's majority was 1,148, and in 1873 he was re-elected by only 228 majority. The totals are as follows: In 1871 68,592, in 1872, 75,[illegible], in 1873, 66,[illegible]. Thus far, neither of the three candidates (Republican, Democratic and Prohibition) has received a majority. The Constitution of New Hampshire makes a majority of all the votes necessary to an election; in case no candidate receives a majority the election is thrown into the Legislature. The 82 towns which have not been heard from will doubtless contribute enough to make the aggregate vote far exceed the total of 1873.

Washington correspondents furnish lively accounts of the struggle in the Senate Chamber between the Butler and anti-Butler men on the occasion of Simmons' confirmation as Collector of the port of Boston. During a conference at the White House on the morning of that day General Grant was finally appealed to by a majority of the Massachusetts delegation to withdraw the nomination. The President flatly refused, and said further that in case Simmons should be rejected by the Senate he would not appoint any of the gentlemen [illegible] the delegation [illegible]. On the floor of the Senate the [illegible] scene was [illegible]. The friends and the opponents of confirmation labored hard with the Senators. Representatives Butler and Hooper even [illegible] Senators Dorsey and Brownlow who were confined to their rooms by sickness carried to their seats to vote. At night the successful lobby held high carnival and Senator Cameron gave a champagne supper. One correspondent says: "The confirmation is everywhere discussed and is regarded as the most remarkable victory Butler has ever gained in Washington. It is believed here by many to presage his [illegible] triumph in Massachusetts."

MAGAZINES FOR MARCH

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY.—Edward King's series of sketches of life and travel in "The Great South" is continued in Scribner's for March. The paper before us is a lively, readable sketch of rambles among the mountains of Western North Carolina. The opening pages are occupied with the journey through Eastern Tennessee, varied with portraits of mountaineer life in that region. Here is a view of "the parson's ca[illegible]":

The old man and his mountain home [illegible] simple and comfortable [illegible] citizen. After the frugal meal was over he asked many questions of the outer world which he had never visited. New York and Louisville seemed to him like dreams. By and by the family came crowding in to evening prayers. It was then quite dark, and the forest around us was still. The parson took down a well worn Bible and opening it at the Psalms read in a loud voice and with occasional [illegible] selections, after which, taking up a hymn book and [illegible] read a hymn, and the family sang line by line as he gave them out. They sang in quavering high pitched voices to the same tune which were heard in the [illegible] when [illegible] was the first settlement and the banks of the French Broad were crimsoned with the blood of white settlers shed by the Indians. The echoes of the hymn died away into the depths of the forest and were succeeded by a prayer of earnestness and fervor, marked here and there by strong phrases of dialect, but one which made our little company bow their heads, for the parson prayed for us and for our journey and brought the prayer home to us. Another hymn was lined, during which the hounds now and then joined in with their musical howl, and at last the family withdrew and we were left in the spare room. Presently however the parson reappeared and announced that he and his wife would share the room with us, which they did, and we were wakened to the six o'clock breakfast by the good woman, who joined with her husband in reproving us for continuing our journey on the Sabbath day.

The record of the journey through Western North Carolina is filled with valuable information concerning the resources and wants of that country, enlivened at frequent intervals with rare bits of word-painting. The article is profusely illustrated with rich engravings.

"The Credit Mobilier" is a compact review of the history of the Union Pacific Railway. The author fortifies his statements with statistical tables which are easily understood, and to the point. In his treatment of the relations of Congress to the Credit Mobilier he is quite conservative. "Ajella Allah or the Women of the Arabs" is a review of Rev. Henry Harris Jessup's work of that name. Other articles are "The Heroes of Washington," "The Tchaypomp," "The autobiography of an Atheist"—a glance at the life of John Stewart Mill—several interesting stories and divers spicy editorial notes.

THE GALAXY.—Reminiscence of Tom Marshall (Paul R Shipman), with which the Galaxy for March is introduced, is a just tribute to a wonderful man who is thus alluded to by the author in the first line: "As an orator Tom Marshall was the foremost Kentuckian of his time and for that matter, of any time." His panegyrist criticises without stint however and concludes that "take him all in all the great Kentuckian was inimitable." "He left to posterity nothing only the warning of his life and the fading memory of his genius." Richard Grant White contributes one of his well written philological disquisitions in which certain inaccuracies in John Stuart Mill's Autobiography are considered. Justin McCarthy continues his serial story "Linley Rochford," which grows in interest, and furnishes a pleasant article on Gustave Dore the eminent artist. Johann Sebastian Bach is treated of by an admirer of his splendid genius. J. L. M. Curry emerges from the shades of his political disabilities to tell us something about "The Confederate States and their Constitution." "Mme de Mauves" by Henry James Jr, "My Russian," by Jane G. Austin and "The Outside of the Cup" are all entertaining stories. The poetry is hardly up to the average; this is also true of Scribner's.

ST NICHOLAS.—The March number of Scribner's Magazine for the young folks is crammed with good things and the engravings are simply superb. Noah Brooks, J. T. Trowbridge, Donald G. Mitchell, Frank R. Stockton and Robert Dale Owen are the leading contributors. The Magazine is worth double its subscription price.

Some of the members of Mr Dawes' committee must be very impressible individuals else there is something out of gear in the civil service of this glorious republic. Two or three days ago William L. Dodge told the committee how Special Agent Jayne robbed his firm of $251,000, and "the statement made a deep impression on them." This reached Jayne's ear (it was insolent but not deaf) and after making a little speech to the committee in which he alluded with delicate emphasis to New York merchants as a set of thieves, he tendered his resignation. And again Jackson S. Schultz, a leading New York importer, made such a powerful speech against the moiety system and Jayne that several of the members subsequently said "We wish Grant would make Shultz Secretary of the Treasury." So says an Associated Press dispatch of March 7th.

Under the heading, "How a lawyer [illegible]," the Tacoma Tr[illegible] informs us that on motion of Senator Mitchell the award of the mail contract from Portland, Oregon, to Sitka, Alaska, for $26,000 per annum to S. Garfielde, who is Collector at Port Townsend W. T., is to be rescinded. Mitchell thinks Garfielde [illegible] a Government contract while holding another office. The question has been submitted to the Attorney General. [illegible] the next bid for this service was made [illegible] of George K. Otis for $22,000. Should the contract be given to Mr Otis, the Government will lose $8,000 per annum, but it will doubtless inure to the benefit of Holladay and will in a large measure assist that gentleman in paying his attorneys, of whom he appears by this little motion to have one in the United States Senate who will not allow the [illegible] to interfere with those of his client.

The House Military Committee [illegible] agreed to recommend the abolition of the [illegible] of army paymasters. It is proposed to have the army paid [illegible] by a few general agents or by drafts on the [illegible]. These changes will [illegible] the abolition of [illegible] officials [illegible] and it is probable that the present Congress [illegible] in carrying retrenchment to this extent [illegible] in Washington. We hope none of the leading economists will be called to seal their [illegible] with their blood. [illegible] believe the average Congressman would [illegible] seal worth a cent.

There is no longer any doubt about it. Caleb has escaped the snare of the Gamesfowler and is now on the bounding billow. Caleb is amiable whatever else he may be. He has concluded to swallow Sargent's bitter pill and take the next best thing which offers. But before he went he confided to his [illegible] to the effect that the General Government ought to contribute several millions of dollars to the relief of that Board of Public Works in the District of Columbia. This is what we call [illegible] revenge.

After the verdict of the jury in the Tichborne case had been read the claimant asked permission to address the Court, but Chief Justice Cockburn refused the request. He had heard enough from that side of the house probably, and as if anxious to get [illegible] hands hastened to pronounce [illegible]. Then the claimant shook hands with Kenealy and the [illegible] with [illegible]. The claimant was taken to Newgate as soon as Cockburn had pronounced [illegible].

The Iowa Legislature having voted an appropriation of $50,000 for the relief of the destitute homesteaders in that State and provided that the money should be disbursed by Commissioners who are to receive $5 each per day and expenses, without limiting the amount [illegible], the Chicago Tribune remarks that it is impossible to state how long it will take the Commission to absorb the $50,000. The Investigating Committee of the next Legislature will probably cipher that problem out.

The Board of Regents of the University of California were requested to grant Professor Wm. Swinton, who occupied the Chair of English Literature and History in the University, leave of absence for a few weeks, which they declined to do. Thereupon Professor Swinton tendered his resignation and it was accepted. The Call says that Swinton intends to go to the Eastern States. He is known on the Pacific coast as the author of several excellent text books.

$1,[illegible],901 24 is a round sum to invest in an iron sieve. Yet that is what the Dictator cost us. We would save many precious lives and put some money in the treasury by selling our whole fleet of iron clads for old iron.

CITY.

Trial of Curtis Mealley.—Monday, 23d inst. the Circuit Court for Linn county will convene at Albany, Judge Boniham presiding. It will be remembered that at the November term of [illegible] this county, a change of venue was granted in the case of State vs. Charles Mealley [illegible] transferred for trial to [illegible] county. Mealley was indicted by the Grand Jury [illegible] this county for the crime of manslaughter. It was charged on the part of the State that he had acted as an accessory in conjunction with Dr. Glass in procuring an abortion on the person of Miss [illegible] Hardman, from which [illegible] woman died. [illegible] Glass [illegible] convicted and sentenced to the Penitentiary [illegible] years for his complicity [illegible] At the same term of court Counsel [illegible] moved for a change of venue on the ground that the public mind was inflamed [illegible] the excitement in [illegible] connected with the death of Miss Hardman that a fair and impartial trial could hardly be expected; that the defendant [illegible] held in Albany, as also had the unfortunate young lady, and that the investigation of the case properly belonged to that county. Among his neighbors and friends who had known the defendant for many years it was claimed that Mr. Mealley could have a fairer and more impartial hearing than in any other part of the State. After taking the matter under advisement Judge Upton granted the change of venue and had the case transferred. Among the first criminal business transacted on the convening of court in that county will probably be the trial of Mr. Mealley on the grave charges preferred. Deputy District Attorney H. Y. Thompson and William H. Effinger, Esq., of Portland will be present during the trial and assist in the prosecution. Mr. Bronaugh and J. N. Dolph, also of this city, will appear for Mr. Mealley and conduct the defense. Quite a number of witnesses, principally medical gentlemen from this city, will be required to be present during this important trial.

Adjudged Insane.—Mrs. Bridget Riley was examined yesterday by Dr. Watkins before Judge Hamilton, having been charged by her friends with insanity. After propounding the usual questions and making the required examination, the unfortunate lady was adjudged insane and the committal papers made out. She was conveyed to the asylum yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Riley is 40 years of age and the mother of seven children. She is a native of Limerick, Ireland, and came from California to Oregon about five years ago. The first symptoms of insanity were manifested the first of last December, since which time the woman's mental condition has constantly grown worse, until the safety of her family required her removal to the asylum. During her sleeping moments the woman imagines that her absent boys are present and that some person is endeavoring to kill her and her children.

Approaching Completion.—Under the skillful manipulations of a number of carpenters the large new and imposing brick structure standing on the fractional block bounded by Front, Vine and A streets, and which will be occupied by the Bank of British Columbia, is very rapidly approaching completion. The exterior of the building has been finished and the interior will soon be ready for occupancy. Several carpenters are engaged at present in putting up a high wooden fence which will enclose the yard to the rear of the edifice. Expense and the best workmanship procurable have been lavished on this building, and the result is an edifice which, for unity of design and beauty of architectural effect, is unsurpassed in the city, and is an enduring ornament to Portland.

Meeting with Encouragement.—The subscription and contributions in behalf of the Hospital which is to be erected under the supervision of Bishop Morris have begun in a very encouraging way. The committee of ladies received over a thousand dollars in a few days, and more than fifteen hundred dollars have been obtained in Portland since the building fund was started. The city has as yet been only partially canvassed, and there is good prospect of securing what is needed to begin the building with. Let the good work go on.

Postponed.—The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Multnomah County Horticultural Society have, we understand, come to the conclusion to recommend the postponement of the annual exhibition until next June, when the market will be well supplied with all descriptions of flowers and fruits, and thus enable the managers to make a much more satisfactory display. There will doubtless be a called meeting early next month, at which time the date of the Fair will be definitely fixed.

East of the Mountains.—The Oregon Churchman says: Dr. Nevius writes very encouragingly concerning his work in Eastern Oregon. At Baker City the plan prepared by Messrs. Krumbein & Gilbert of Portland has been adopted, and the contract for building the church has been let. The congregation is steadily increasing, more people are taking part in the services, and many are seeking to know more of the teachings and principles of the Church.

Another Unfortunate.—Sheriff Palmer of Benton county arrived here last evening having in charge an insane man named Norman McClellan. This man is aged about 45 years, is a Nova Scotian by birth and unmarried. He has resided for several years [illegible] at Yaquina Bay. At times he was so violent that he had to be chained down. Cause of insanity not known. McClellan was committed to the Asylum late last evening.

Steamer for Stickeen.—We learn that Capt. John Irving launched at Victoria, on the 10th inst., a stern wheel boat called the Glenora, which he intends running on the Stickeen river. This steamer is one hundred feet in length over all, twenty feet breadth of beam, and when loaded will have a draught of water of about twenty inches. Her boiler and engines will be those formerly used in propelling the steamer Onward.

Officers Elected.—At a special meeting of the Directors of the Library Association of Portland, held in the Library Room on Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: Hon. M. P. Deady, President; H. Failing, Esq., Vice President; [illegible] C. Schuyler, Esq., Treasurer; [illegible] W. Fechheimer, Esq., Corresponding Secretary; H. A. Oyer, Recording Secretary.

Commissions Received.—Captain [illegible] A. J. [illegible] and [illegible] Eddy [illegible] lieutenants, who were elected to their respective positions at the recent annual meeting of the Washington Guard, have just received their commissions from Governor Grover.

Vesper Service.—The evening service in the Unitarian Church to-morrow is the Vesper Service, consisting of anthems and responsive worship. The public are cordially invited.

A Satisfactory Reference.—The best reference that can be given as to the efficacy of Dr. Walker's Scientific [illegible] Time. It has prolonged the lives of thousands of dyspeptics [illegible] feeble [illegible] whom the old [illegible] would have otherwise [illegible] down [illegible]

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

The Temperance Prayer Meeting held at the First Presbyterian Church last evening was well attended and the people showed no abatement of the interest hitherto manifested in this movement. The meeting was led by Rev. Mr. Izer, who spoke with great earnestness [illegible] upon the subject of the success of the war being made by the hosts of Christians [illegible] on the traffic in alcoholic beverages. Many others addressed the meeting and fervent prayers for the success of the cause were offered. Several items referring to the [illegible] and history of the movement now agitating the country were read and commented on. The following

RESOLUTION

Were read by Rev. Mr. Izer:

Resolved, That this meeting appoint 10 A. M. to-morrow (Saturday) as a time for [illegible] prayer unto God [illegible] this community [illegible] the temperance [illegible] throughout the nation [illegible]

Resolved, That the bell [illegible] ringing [illegible] every lover of temperance in this community [illegible] fervent pleadings for Divine guidance and blessing.

Dr. Atkinson was called to the chair and a motion made by Rev. Mr. Izer to adopt the resolutions was seconded by a number of persons in the audience. The motion was then submitted by the Chairman and the resolutions were adopted by a rising vote.

The usual prayer meeting by the ladies will be held at the Presbyterian Church at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE COLOR GUARD.

Oro Fino Theater was well filled last evening on the first presentation of the Color Guard under the auspices of Baker and Canby Post. Although the night was cold and inclement there was a large attendance of ladies and gentlemen.

The plot of Act I is laid in Carlton, a village in Ohio, and first and faithfully portrays the patriotism [illegible] exhibited throughout the entire North at the first reception of the news of the fall of Fort Sumter and the alacrity with which men of the North without distinction of political party responded to the call of the President for 75,000 men. The character of Mr. Ludlow, personated by Mr. Woodward, represents a village banker who without hesitation devotes his two sons to the holy cause. H. L. Oatman, in the character of Farmer Johnson, portrays truthfully and forcibly the noble and self-sacrificing stand taken by honest contentment [illegible] at the commencement of the great rebellion. Sam Williams, personated by Mr. [illegible] DeLashmutt, shows to the best advantage the large class of men in the North at the first outbreak of the war, always from somewhere, who are ready [illegible] patriotic devotion, desiring always to be thought first in every enterprise, yet lacking personal courage to do anything when action rather than words are required, declaring himself to act but exceedingly ready to promise the personal courage of his friends and relatives.

The two sons of Mr. Ludlow, Jackson and Lewis, represented respectively by Mr. [illegible] and Mr. [illegible]; Jack Johnson, son of Farmer Johnson, by Mr. C. W. May, and Sam Roberts, Miss Abby Smith's admirer, by [illegible] W. P. [illegible], in appearing in this act show with truthfulness to the life and with admirable effect the alacrity with which the young men of the North parted from family friends and their dearest loved ones to do battle in the noble cause.

The character of Alfred Thornton, sustained by Mr. C. P. Yates, is a character not very numerously found in the North at the commencement of the rebellion, yet many such characters were to be met with, born North—reared South, smooth manners, a villain at heart, steady to but one purpose—that of self, with but one controlling passion—that of love for a woman. His love for Miss Lucy Johnson is unmistakably ardent and pervading every fiber of his sordid nature. Pressing his suit with Miss Johnson with protestations of his devotion, appeals to her sympathy, and with threats alternating, till finally the noble woman, Miss Lucy Johnson, personated by Mrs. Alf. Morgan, rises to the full height of her noble, womanly nature and spurns from her presence the vile creature in the garb of man whose honor hangs on a woman's word when great principles are at stake. And having learned from Miss Lucy's lips that the first place in her heart was occupied by another—Mr. Louis Ludlow—the green eyed monster, jealousy, takes full possession of his little soul and pursues with hatred the object of her affection, never remitting till death.

The character of Abby Smith was finely sustained throughout by Miss Minnie Welch.

Mr. F. C. Smith in the character of Wash—of the colored persuasion—in his experiences in love affairs was very cleverly portrayed.

The closing scene of the first act is a thrilling presentation, by the citizens, to the soldiers about leaving for the seat of war. The little presentation speech, by Miss Lucy Johnson, and the response by Louis Ludlow, the color bearer, are both characteristic of the occasion and bring back to every soldier memories which are already beginning to fade in lapse of years. And to many who acted the citizens' part in those heroic times come trooping back not only memories of those scenes, but memories of the loved ones who, with the flag, then went South and never came back.

The second act opens with a scene at a tavern in the mountains, in East Tennessee. Mountaineers, with whom are Mr. Alfred Thornton and Tom Flinn—personated by Mr. Newport—discovered—Thornton with his friend Tom having made his way from the village of Carlton, in Ohio, to this place for the purpose of recruiting a company of mountain men to fight for the Confederacy. Peter Hygley appears in this scene—a creature of circumstance born to dwindle and whoop, accepts the situation and makes the best of it, being of a philosophical turn of mind, watches for further developments. This character was splendidly sustained by Mr. C. M. Brown.

Bob Mason and his friend Long George, mountain men of the purest type, with strong muscle and cool nerve educated in nature's school rather than the school of men, appear in the scene, and being by Thornton and his adherents challenged to join them to fight for the Confederacy, Bob for himself and his friend Long George states his reason for declining the liquor proffered briefly and pointedly, and announces their determination to fight with the Union, whereupon the crowd set upon them with pistols and knives. Being accustomed to the fiercer phases of human nature and fortified in the right, not a muscle quivered while Bob and his friend, with pistols in either hand, held the crowd at bay, and retiring with the promise to bring the flag of the Union back to his native mountains of Tennessee, and bidding the cowards look out when he lights the fires for the hunt on the mountains.

In Act III the curtain rises upon scenes in the great rebellion two years later in the history of the war than was portrayed in the act next preceding it. Bob Mason and Peter Hygley are found in the Union ranks, and serving with the Regiment from Ohio to which the Company organized at the village of Carlton is attached.

The last scene of Act III gives a most lively and lifelike picture of an actual engagement between the contending armies. The number engaged on either side is limited and less than a full Company, but the spectator has only to multiply the number engaged before him by tens of thousands and a fair idea of an actual engagement between large contending armies is had—lacking of course the cavalry and artillery arms of the service, which is not represented and which in actual war would add much to the life of the scene.

The curtain rises in Act IV upon a cell in Libby Prison. Union prisoners discovered, among whom are Louis Ludlow and Captain Forsyth. Bob Mason is also discovered in this scene disguised as a negro and employed by the rebel authorities in sweeping the cells. The prison guard enter to turn out the prisoners to roll call. Captain Forsyth is sick and [illegible] the officer to let him off this time. After giving him a few kicks with his boot, concluding he is sick, and directs one of the guards to take his name. Of all the remaining characters in the cast we can only add that they were sustained in a most splendid manner. We cannot [illegible] particularize [illegible] Mrs. Alice [illegible] worthy of [illegible] professional. Cultivation is only necessary to make her a most excellent actress. The tableaux at the close of each act were beyond all doubt the most perfect and gorgeous scenic exhibitions which we have ever seen displayed in the Oro Fino Theater.

Matinee this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the last exhibition this evening. [illegible] have no hesitation in attending the matinee, as the discharge of fire arms will be wholly omitted during the minor engagements. In all respects this drama is well worthy of patronage, and we bespeak a crowded house.

It is a rare thing that physicians give any countenance to a medicine the manufacture of which is a secret. About the only exception we know of is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. This, we believe, all endorse, and many of them use it in their practice with great success.

Persons requiring purgatives or pills should be careful what they buy. Some pills [illegible] cause griping pains, but leave the bowels in a torpid condition. Parsons' Purgative Pills will relieve the bowels and cleanse the blood without injury to the system.

THE GHOST THAT JIM SAW

[illegible]

Why, as for the ghost, the engineer
[illegible] we are told to fear
[illegible]

And as for Jim—
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible] one night on the [illegible]
[illegible]
Just [illegible] and [illegible] once
Come a drink [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
As I drove by [illegible]

[illegible]
Too late, for there came a thud [illegible]
As the fireman there in the cab with him
[illegible]
And says "What now?"
[illegible] "What now
[illegible]—that's how

Then I remark'd that Jim [illegible] They ran
Back but they never found house nor man—
Nary a shadow within a mile
Jim turned pale but he tried to smile—
Then on he tore
[illegible] or more,
[illegible] time than he'd had afore

Would you believe it—the very next night
[illegible] house in the moonlight white
[illegible]
Down goes the brakes and the rest encore—
And so in fact
Each night that act
Occurred till folks swore Jim was cracked

Humph! Let me see it's a year now most
That I met Jim East and says "How's your ghost?"
"Gone," says Jim "and more it's plain
That ghost don't trouble me again
I thought I shook
That ghost when I took
A place on an Eastern line—but look

What should I meet the first trip out
But that very house that we talked about
And that self same man "Well," says I "I guess
It's time to stop this yer foolishness
So I crammed on steam
When there came a scream
From my fireman—and it broke my dream—

'You've killed somebody!' Says I "Not much
I've been thar often and thar ain't no such,
And now I'll prove it" Back we ran
And—darn my skin!—but thar was a man
On the rail, dead
Smashed in the head—
Now I call that meanness" That's all Jim said

CATCHING A TARTAR

A TRADITION OF SWEDEN

Charles XII of Sweden, surnamed on account of his warlike propensities by his admirers, the "Lion of the North" and by his detractors, with equal justice, perhaps the "Madman of the North," accidentally encountered at the Chateau Gortz a young creature from the banks of the Volga—a niece of Baron Gortz So powerful was the impression she at once made upon the hitherto impregnable heart of the hero, so completely was he spellbound in her charms, that he seemed to lose all recollection of other matters, even of the disastrous battle of Pultowa.

The name of this enchantress was the Princess Ikla—for she was a princess, her mother, the Baron's sister, having married the Hetman of the Tartars Being left an orphan at an early age she had taken up her residence with Baron Gortz at Stralsund

The Baron was a bit of a historian—or he thought he was—and was then engaged in writing a history of the King, who called upon him often to revise and correct the work Besides, the Baron was one of the crown councilors and was often entrusted with important business of the State.

Charles XII had that desire which seems to be inherent in the breast of greatness—he wished to be loved for himself alone without regard to his state and grandeur Consequently he had himself presented to Ikla under the simple title of Count d Olfen, and in that name he paid his court to the erratic princess for her Tartar blood made her disregard many of the conventionalities of life, though her uncle often declared that she had the blood of the Gortzes full in her veins, and was no more a Tartar than he was, and there was not much of the Kalmuck about him

Baron Gortz was highly delighted at the prospect of becoming the uncle of the king, but that delight was tempered by a wholesome dread of his prospective nephew in-law. For stripping off the dazzling veil of his military glory, he must acknowledge that the "Lion of the North" was an unmitigated tyrant, and ruled his subjects in a very arbitrary manner

Baron de Gortz had proof of this one day, when he received a letter from the king It contains these words

"Baron Gortz, information has reached me that the Captain of Hubans, Gustavus Reinold, who was condemned to death for neglect of orders at the battle of Pultowa, but who escaped before the execution of his sentence, has been seen in Stralsund Write instantly to the governor tell him I hold him responsible for the apprehension of this traitor Within five minutes of his being taken and identified let him be shot And the person in whose house he shall be found shall be forthwith shot. 'CHARLES '

This letter troubled the good Baron sorely for his niece had made him promise to intercede for this identical young officer He broke into a cold perspiration when he reflected that if he did so, the probability was that he would get himself shot for his pains He wished in his heart that the king and Ikla were married, because then he should be his uncle and he could never think of shooting one of the royal family

He wrote the order to the governor, and sent it by a servant who informed him that an officer of the police wished to speak with him. Wondering at this, he hurried to the hall below On his return, he found Ikla a sylphid dark-haired, dark eyed gypsy of a woman, gazing listlessly from the large bay window into the street below She noticed that he was in a state of perturbation

'What is the matter?' she asked

'I want to put you on your guard," he exclaimed, breathlessly "The police have sent to say they have reason to believe that a young man is concealed somewhere in my chateau."

"I know it " answered Ikla, coolly I concealed him "

'Who is he?" exclaimed the astonished Baron. 'Who is he?"

"Gustavus Reinold"

The Baron uttered a dismal groan

"Ikla, you have murdered me he cried and sank feebly into a chair

"Not so bad as that, I hope," she replied, smilingly

"I tell you that whoever harbors the traitor is to be shot' exclaimed the frightened Baron irately

"You know well that Gustavus is no traitor

'What signifies that?' If the king orders it, he must be shot—and so must I' And the Baron groaned again "What made you take so fatal an interest in this wretched young man?"

His misfortunes replied Ikla He is innocent, I know it, and my dear mother, your sister knew it also Forced by a cruel and unjust sentence to fly his country he found refuge and safety in ours

Then why the deuce did he leave it?

To follow me when you sent for me. Finding the pursuit so hot, I thought the best asylum for him was your chateau

At this moment, a servant entered the room and announced Count d'Olfen

The Baron's visage brightened with a hopeful idea.

There is but one chance for us all' he exclaimed marry the Count and then— he checked himself abruptly

It depends on that, our chance is small she returned roguishly but listen to me —obey me and all will yet be well I intend to play a desperate game but if I win I shall save a life of far more value than my own

She held a rapid conference with the Baron and though he listened to her at first with astonishment and alarm she finally won him over to her purpose and he promised to assist her though it was with fear and trembling But he had pretty well made up his mind by this time that he should be shot any way and he thought it did not make much difference for what

He withdrew, and Charles XII, as Count d Olfen entered the room He wore the uniform of his favorite regiment, a light blue coat trimmed with gold and the corners of the skirts turned back high boots of black leather, to which a formidable pair of spurs were attached a three cornered black hat a black stock buff gauntlets and a heavy sword. He looked more like a warrior equipped for the field than a fond lover seeking his lady's bower.

He felt like a timid school boy in the presence of his exquisite beauty who had stormed the outworks of his heart and penetrated to the very citadel Would any one believe that he was Charles XII

In her turn, Ikla also had her reflection

"He seeks a Tartar" she thought he shall find one

What Count he exclaimed [illegible] months How [illegible] you must be to the king

Well I am, he exclaimed but I came [illegible] what [illegible] a woman till I saw you

[illegible] the very [illegible] pettishly

They say he hates women

[illegible] Charles [illegible]

How do you know she asked [illegible]

[illegible]

You might as well say you think you know yourself!'

How [illegible] he said

Which [illegible]

Oh, I know [illegible] what a taking, striking, bewitching little creature you are Above all, I know how I love you I am a plain blunt soldier and like to know the worst that can happen to me Do you love me

Is that the worst that can happen you? I asked demure!

Ikla I generally get the best of it it [illegible] shall simply return the charge Do you love me?

I must have proof of your love before I answer that

What proof

Would you grant any little whim of mine?'

Certainly I would

'Don't make any rash promises

I swear it

Ikla laughed gleefully went into an adjoining room and brought forward an antique costume such as had been worn by the dames of fifty years ago

I have the greatest desire to see how you would look dressed as my grandmother she cried,

The king was appalled

'Death and the dev— ' he began

Oh fie! no swearing in a lady's presence, she said checking him But I am glad I have discovered what your love amounts to

He expostulated with her and ended, as common mortals do in submitting to woman's will

She then dressed him in the heavy brocade dress, and then tied the high starched cap tight under his chin

'Faugh he cried in disgust the dress makes me smell like a musk rat

'You don't like perfumes, then '

'No—yes one—gunpowder I'm like Charles XII and there's no perfume for me but gunpowder

Oh if I were his wife exclaimed Ikla fervently

He regarded her in pleased surprise

'What are you in love with the king?

'Oh dear no Only I might be inclined to sacrifice one's self for the good of one's country

Charles smiled grimly

'You are vastly condescending,' he replied And pray, what else would you do for the good of your country

'I would soften his character I would tame this lion and he should soon be as much beloved as he is already admired and feared

And how is this to be accomplished?" inquired Charles

Sit down and let me tell you There now you must fancy yourself Charles XII

"Well, I do," he answered with a significant smile

Consider me the queen ' she continued, and drew her chair beside him

Go on he cried rather pleased with the conceit

I should devote my life to obtaining and securing his entire confidence

'We will suppose you have it '

Then I should use it to make him submit on all fitting occasions to my sovereign will, I would teach him the true value of his noblest prerogative '

'Which is—

'Mercy '

'Come, come Charles XII is severe I I now—but he is just '

Not always Witness the case of Captain Reinold'

Charles started, and glanced at her suspiciously

What do you know of the culprit he cried

"His sentence is unjust," she answered firmly, "and therefore a fit object for the interference of the queen.' She rose, went to the table and took a paper from it. 'Now if I were queen, I would approach the king, as I do you, with this paper in my hand She walked up to him with dignity I would say to him, Sir your honor and your glory both require that you should put your name to this Sign

He took the paper from her in surprise and looked at it

'A pardon for Captain Reinold he exclaimed, and his brow darkened angrily Indeed then my dear little friend, if I were Charles XII, this would be my answer

He tore up the paper

Nothing discomposed, she immediately drew another paper from her pocket

Then ' she said and she knelt at his feet pleading, as she spoke, King of Sweden, your eyes are blinded—not by justice but by anger When Captain Reinold was entrusted with that order he found the battle of Pultowa irretrievably lost if he had delivered it, he would only have caused a massacre of the Swedish prisoners by the remorseless Russians For this reason alone he did not deliver it and thus incurred your Majesty's displeasure.

I desire to know the reason of the extraordinary interest you take in this young man he asked

You shall know Count ' she answered when you have promised to obtain his pardon from the king

"I will make no such promise cried Charles sternly

A timid knocking at the door disturbed them Ikla would have opened it but Charles aware of the ridiculous manner in which he was dressed restrained her Then the voice of the Baron was heard in very tremulous accents declaring that the royal council was assembled and awaited the presence of the Count

Charles in dismay begged Ikla to remove the dress for he found it impossible to do so; but she only laughed at his predicament

'Wretched girl!' he exclaimed angrily "you have forced me to declare myself I am the king"

But she only laughed the louder

"Sire she answered with mocking courtesy 'I knew it from the first Sign the pardon therefore or I will at once admit the council

The king was obliged to acknowledge himself vanquished He signed the pardon and Ikla freed him from the obnoxious garments Then she admitted her uncle and informed the king that he was all the council there was assembled, and reassured the poor Baron, who was half frightened to death for his share in the little plot

Baron de Gortz said Charles for certain reasons I have pardoned Captain Reinold Let this pardon be sent to him at once'

Ikla took the pardon

There is no reason to send it, sire she said gravely I can deliver it myself Gustavus is concealed in the chateau

'Gustavus again!' cried the king sharply 'Is this man your lover

He is and would have been my husband '

Then you have deceived me every way '

No sire you deceived yourself Had I been ambitious I might have shaled your [illegible] as it is I have saved Sweden from a queen who would not have been worthy of her and restored to her a king who is

He was determined she should not beat him in every way

'Ikla he exclaimed I will restore I [illegible] old to favor and make him a colonel and is I still have my doubts about him let you marry him No doubt you will teach him to obey orders in future [illegible] he not find—

'What?

'That he has caught a Tartar

The [illegible] the people [illegible] of New York, as follow

When President Grant remarked that it was high time for the Republican party to unload he gave utterance to a sentiment that with one single change would be placed on record as the wisest saying of [illegible] the Republican party that is overburdened that is carrying a cargo too heavy and too [illegible] for safety to the ship in a heavy sea and [illegible] It [illegible] the country over [illegible] and does not behoove our rulers to ease the craft by throwing overboard every pound of useless ballast every ounce of contraband freight every [illegible] whose presence on board is a constant invitation for the wind and waves to rise and drive the good ship upon the rock

The country is suffering not alone in the debt encumbered and misgoverned Southern State but in busy New England and in the [illegible] West, in the sturdy Middle State There is no industry that does not feel the weight the supercargoes have imposed upon the country and until the weight is lifted there can be no recovery from the strain of bearing it no relief from the crushing pressure of the load

We have thousands of useless office holders who bleed the country for the behoof of the party We have an army almost useless in the field and more expensive in camp and fort than in times of war with hundreds of officers doing no service except as ornament [illegible] in the signing of pay roll and scores of private [illegible] for [illegible] officers [illegible] ment [illegible] are borne on the rolls as enlisted men Then we have highly expensive [illegible] roads to carry some of which seem to be of almost [illegible] to develop the [illegible] that is in men villainous public servants who glory in their [illegible] tion a Congress which trifles with the time and the temper of the people that wastes the public money and last, though not least a national debt that singularly enough seems like the ditch to grow longer when [illegible] at the end and that threatens unless merciful Providence should intervene with dispensation to improve this as we increase in wealth and to [illegible] lasting foundation for a system of looseness irregularity and dishonesty such as has never been known in the history of the nation.

Some of these things can be and must be unload [illegible] ther we must [illegible] the Old Man of the Sea until by the introduction of a new spirit we rid ourselves of the incubus and start afresh in light marching order, on the [illegible] forgotten [illegible]
